An anonymous letter has been received by the Probate Registrar at Birmingham. It contained 3 postal orders for 20/- each & a scrap of paper upon which was written: - "For the King or for this Soldier, or for keeping the County going, a sort of King's Taxes I suppose from me who respects Him. God Bless him, God bless the King." In the margin was written: - "I hope this will go to the right places, the places I mean." The Probate Registrar at Birmingham has forwarded the letter & its contents to Lord Knollys, the King's Private Secretary.

To George Romenes

"One of the ways in which I go down the hill is that I am always filching for some other use the time I ought to give to the reading of poetry, or the poetry in some form. That is one way in which those who are born men may come to die grocers. So it will be a real work of charity, a missionary enterprise, if often you will drop in at the Deanery, & say that the moment has come for me to leave off writing letters, read some Browning, or whatever it may be. It may inconvenience you: but you must reflect that it is for my good" P.T.O.

Richard has come home from school, gladly the better for his first Term there .... advancing in civilization according to Toxley's definition of it as the art of maintaining an interesting conversation.

requires what is more difficult to gain it, a new course of education, a higher tone of moral feeling, more of the Progressive Meanings of Spiritual Life

Guardian July 2 1914

Lennon by Rev. E.A. Burroughs

"If we ~~try~~ live by the spirit let our by spirit let us also work.

"The differentia of man that which makes him human, is the spiritual faculty. Man is an animal whom at least one side of him is sensitive to God, & capax Dei - able to receive God into himself."

Comhill (July 1914)

"Beside these nursery vices he came often to see us; talking with me one day about some of his Fairy Tales he told me that once, when he was passing through one of the small German principalities, he was invited by the Prince of the State to dinner. The Prince's little daughter asked her father to be allowed to speak to Mr.

Anderson, as she had something very particular to say to him. When she came into the room where he was talking with some gentlemen, she went up to him directly & said: "Mr. Anderson, you do not always speak the truth. After reading your story of 'The Princess & the Parched Pea', I wanted to try the effect, & I had several peas put under my one mattress. I did not feel them at all, but I slept soundly all night; now there is no doubt that I am a real Princess, & have proved that you do not always tell the truth!"

"He could find his own spirit not only by the daily exercise of his sacred calling, but by the resources of a wide & generous education."

Is a review of 12 "Gleanings of John" by (as "Gleanings" among his countrymen) -

"Crisis has increased 500% within her borders since 1870 - H. E. J. J. J."

Matthew Arnold ranked the Gleanings among the best of the Gleanings at the Gleanings - " " "

"It is by his father's logic that the Gleanings produces his first exquisite. 'Would you be good enough to give me a word out, to stop a moment?'
'I'm good enough, the King said, 'only

I'm not strong enough; you see a minute goes by so pleasantly quick; you might - as well try to stop a Bandersnatch.
 Here the logic is swamworthy.

Our School scholars are doing such fine work & form such a large body that we are anxious to put them on footing which shall be quite convenient to the several heads. I hope to have a satisfactory scheme out by Xmas.

Robt Rind Smith has sent me suggestions (in the holidays) which may be fine from the queries I have been to the other heads.

"Thirdly, we have the large class of amateurs or characteristic of England, genuinely interested in culture with a high level of taste; & finally the mass, which is not marked by appreciation of culture. The struggle between this mass (which is not confined to any one social stratum, but pervades them all) is the constant problem of Education".
